Differentiate easily across your curriculum

EAL blended learning for learners in schools

The Learning Village offers English as an Additional Language (EAL) blended learning for induction-to-English, gap-filling and pre-teaching vocabulary and language structures. It's suitable for all EAL teaching in school, including independent learning, small-group teaching of beginners, and teaching of those with intermediate levels of English. The Learning Village is suitable for learners of any mother tongue, thanks to its image-based approach, including those not literate in their home language.

Opt for:

- 'The Islands': 11-16 years old
- 'The Village': 6-12 years old

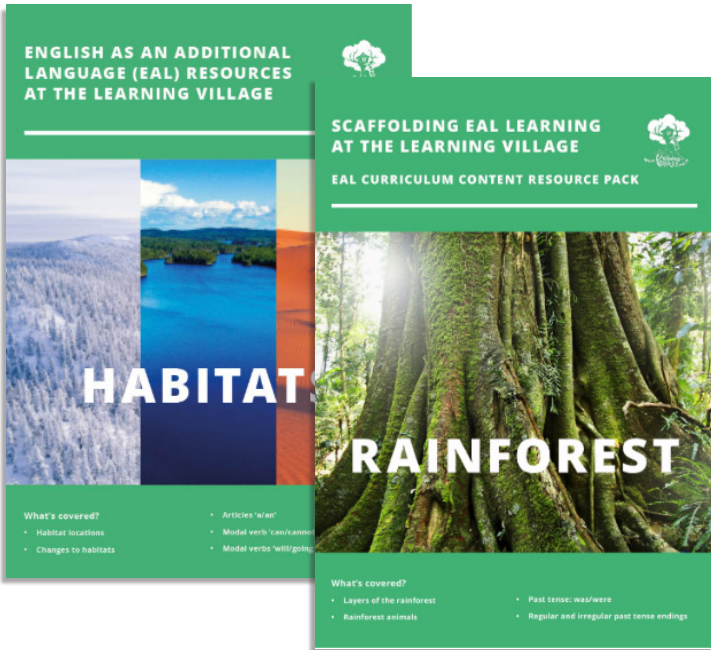

- Provides 10,000+ words & phrases, incorporating speaking, listening, reading and writing
- Helps learners unable to read their mother tongue
- Saves significant time preparing lessons
- Assesses & tracks learner progress
- Supports blended classrooms and self-study
- Provides for Special Educational Needs students
- Allows learners to support themselves

“[We had] a student arriving from overseas ... 18 years old and having limited oral skills and no reading or writing. He really felt pleased being able to use the Learning Village for self-study, without feeling conscious in front of the others in the class.”

Shirley Rowe, Head of ESOL, New Plymouth Boys High, New Zealand
